

Account history is information about all the actions performed with any Forex account. This may be a profit, loss, credit, deposit, etc. Account history is necessary for an objective analysis of concluded transactions and monitoring the Forex account in real time. In addition, the account history allows evaluating in details the effectiveness of the trading strategy of a trader for a long period of time. Also it allows trader to identify all the strengths and weaknesses of his trading strategy. Account History is a detailed database about all performed trading operation. Based on all accumulated information, the trader has the opportunity to learn a lot of useful information from this feature.