

Life and death of the great stock speculator - Richard Smith

Description of the professional life of one of the best speculator Jesse Livermore, also known as Larry Livingstone - the character of the book "Reminiscences of a Stock Speculator." According to descriptions from the book, Jesse Livermore was a very secretive, silent and unknown. This man had reached enormous control over their emotions, which allowed him a very cold and logical reasoning, without succumbing to emotional impulses. The presented book is a classic stock trading, which has helped many generations of stock traders in their daily work.