

Balance is the total final financial results after the closing of all open trade positions of your account. The balance shows the state of your account, compared with previous values (before the opening of trading positions). If the overall result of the financial transaction is profitable, in this case, the balance is positive. If the total result of the loss-making trades, then the balance will be negative. The more successful financial operations are carried out on the sale of a financial instrument, the more the probability of obtaining the outcome of a positive balance in your trading account.
