

The dealer is the employee of the company, which is processing client requests, opening and closing of the transaction and perform other financial transactions by clients of the company. The dealer is the intermediary through which traders can trade the forex market. The dealer performs client requests on his behalf. The dealer accepts the obligations to implement the trading of specified customers online. All financial transactions carried out by the dealer, carried out at his expense. The dealer operates by charging a certain fee for his services, his work is a bit similar to the exchanger rate. Dealer earnings are calculated as the difference between bid and ask prices of the instrument. In any case, the dealer acts as your counterparty, which means that any financial transactions carried out by the trader, will be performed by the dealer.