

Nontrading Operation is a operation on entering money on the trading account, withdrawals from the account, a loan or a refund. In other words, non-commercial operation is an operation not related to the implementation of trade deal by the Client on the trading terminal. With this type of operation client has an opportunity to get acquainted with the opening of an account when you need to deposit funds into your merchant account to be then able to make it trading. Then, when the client company will earn enough money, some of them already can be derived from the trading account to an external source: the purse of any trading system, bank card, etc. In addition, under certain conditions, Customer may use the loan shall be credited to his account with a view to increasing trade transactions committed.