

Trading account - a unique register of fixation and storage of all spent in the trading platform of financial transactions for a specific customer who has access to trading in the Forex market through their own unique account. Verification the data for input to the trading account is initially available only to the account holder, thus avoiding any possibility of it any trading by others. Trading account stores information about all open client trading positions to buy or sell a specified quantity of financial instrument, as well as any other information relating to the activities of the account holder during the activity of the trading account: non-trading operations and orders, etc.