

Transaction is a trade operation regarding the opening or closing trading positions. In other words, the transaction is a set of trading operations on Forex market, in which the funds transferred from the base currency in the quote currency and vice versa. Transaction can be explained in the following way: at the international Forex market works in different market participants are constantly producing trading for buying and selling financial instruments. According to market participants are treated as ordinary traders and major banks are the most developed countries, investment companies, etc. These market participants are constantly carrying out foreign exchange. So there was a notion of transactions. Today, transactions are commonplace due to the fact that they have become an integral part of the financial sphere of world economy.