

Password of Trader - the password (secret character sequence) necessary for the trader to log into his trading account on the trading platform of the Company. To log into the trading account, the client must specify his login and the password at proper form of trading platform. After successful identification of these data, the trader has the opportunity to start to open trade deals or perform other transactions on the Forex market.

Trader's password is generated by the trading platform on account opening. In addition to trading password, the client also receives the password of investor. Trader can use it to log into the trading account without making any trades.

Trading password must be stored in a secret place, so no one can enter into the trading account in order to perform undesirable trading operations. In the case of losing the trader password, you can contact the customer support center of the Company to restore it.
